Personal data

'Personal data' is any information that relates to a living, identifiable person. This data can include your name, contact details, and other information we gather as part of our relationship with you.

It can also include 'special categories' of data, which is information about a person's race or ethnic origin, religious, political or other beliefs, physical or mental health, trade union membership, genetic or biometric data, or sexual orientation. The collection and use of these types of data is subject to strict controls. Similarly, information about criminal convictions and offences is also limited in the way it can be processed.

We are committed to protecting your personal data, whether it is in 'special categories' (as defined by the Information Commissioners Office) or not, and we only process data if we need to for a specific purpose, as explained below.

We collect your personal data mostly through our contact with you, and the data is usually provided by you, but in some instances, we may receive data about you from other people/organisations. We will explain when this might happen in this notice.

The lawful basis for which we use this information

We collect and use parent and pupil information under:

Article 6c of the GDPR where processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the controller is subject: for example – The Children Acts of 1989 and 2004

Article 6e of the GDPR where processing is necessary to undertake a public task: for example, the Education Act 1996 requires that schools operate and that children in England and Wales aged five to 16 receive full-time education.

Article 6f where processing is necessary for our legitimate interests or that of our third party, for example: where we let out school facilities, arrange or facilitate after-school or extra-curricular activities, or sporting events not part of taught sports in the school.

Article 9 of the GDPR where processing of special category data is necessary to protect the vital interests of the data subject where the data subject is physically or legally incapable of giving consent – for example in safeguarding a child(ren) or child protection.

Less commonly, we may also process pupils' personal data in situations where:

We have obtained consent to use it in a certain way, for example parental consent for a learner to attend a school visit or parental consent to use photographs of pupils for display purposes.

Where we have obtained consent to use pupils' personal data, this consent can be withdrawn at any time. We will make it clear when we ask for consent and explain how consent can be withdrawn.

Some of the reasons listed above for collecting and using pupils' personal data overlap, and there may be several grounds which justify our use of the data.

Collecting pupil information

Whilst the majority of pupil information you provide to us is mandatory, some of it is provided to us on a voluntary basis.

Whenever we seek to collect information from you or your child, we make it clear whether providing it is mandatory or optional. If it is mandatory, we will explain the possible consequences of not complying.

We keep personal information about pupils while they are attending our school. We may also keep it beyond their attendance at our school if this is necessary in order to comply with our legal obligations. We aim to keep your data safe and secure and ensure that anyone we share your information with also meets our data security requirements.

Some of this information is then stored in the NPD. The law that allows this is the Education (Information About Individual Pupils) (England) Regulations 2013. The National Pupil Database (NPD)

The NPD is owned and managed by the Department for Education and contains information about pupils in schools in England. It provides invaluable evidence on educational performance to inform independent research, as well as studies commissioned by the Department. It is held in electronic format for statistical purposes. This information is securely collected from a range of sources including schools, local authorities and awarding bodies.

To find out more about the NPD, go to:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/national-pupil-database-user-guide-and-supporting-information>.

The department may share information about our pupils from the NPD with third parties who promote the education or well-being of children in England by:

- conducting research or analysis;
- producing statistics;
- providing information, advice or guidance.

The Department has robust processes in place to ensure the confidentiality of our data is maintained and there are stringent controls in place regarding access and use of the data. Decisions on whether DfE releases data to third parties are subject to a strict approval process and based on a detailed assessment of:

- who is requesting the data;
- the purpose for which it is required;
- the level and sensitivity of data requested; and
- the arrangements in place to store and handle the data.

To be granted access to pupil information, organisations must comply with strict terms and conditions covering the confidentiality and handling of the data, security arrangements and retention and use of the data.

Under data protection legislation, parents have a legal right to access their child's educational record.

Individuals also have a right to make a subject access request to gain access to personal information that schools holds about them or their child if the child is under the age of 12. (Not of an age to be considered mature enough to understand their rights over their own data)

Subject access requests can be made verbally. To ensure that your verbal request is fully understood the Information Commissioners Office (ICO) on their website say the following:

Yes. You can make a subject access request verbally, but we recommend you put it in writing if possible because this gives you a record of your request.

If you are making a verbal request, try to:

- use straightforward, polite language;
- focus the conversation on your subject access request;
- discuss the reason for your request, if this is appropriate – work with them to identify the type of information you need and where it can be found;
- ask them to make written notes – especially if you are asking for very specific information; and
- check their understanding – ask them to briefly summarise your request and inform them if anything is incorrect or missing before finishing the conversation.

However, even if you make your request verbally, we recommend you follow it up in writing (eg by letter, email or using a standard form).

So to avoid confusion we ask you when making a subject access request, or requesting to be given access to your child's educational record, you do so by contacting our Data Protection Officer, Chris Manning, in writing either to Birmingham Diocesan Multi-Academy Trust, 1 Colmore Row, Birmingham, B3 2BJ or by email to dpo@bdmat.org.uk
